
DONATING YUM

EMT's, Senior's, Police/Firefighters, Health Care Workers

Erik Hernandez and The Original Pancake House Alpharetta are ready to feed the community and help out the best way they know how and that is by cooking the healthiest, no preservative, made from scratch, authentic breakfast there is, and delivering it to deserving COVID-19 Heros and people in need.

The Hernandez Family and The Original Pancake House Alpharetta are here to help feed the community.

Hernandez says he is tired of sitting on his hands and he knows his loyal customers will not only come back to him, but he feels like they want to help also. Hernandez claims with donation support from anonymous Alpharettiens, or anyone that wants to help, he will handle the rest.

What Erik Hernandez and The Original Pancake House Alpharetta have done is set up a PayPal donation site. They are asking anyone that wants to help feed EMT's, 1st Responders, Senior Living facilities, Local Police, Hospital / Health Care professionals and more, to log on and make a donation to his cause. Hernandez plans to take the donations and use them to produce his wonderful breakfast food togo, including his special breakfast burritos that he developed exclusively for easy transport during the virus epidemic. He then plans to pick an organization that is deserving of full happy bellies and he will deliver food to them based on their schedule. Hernandez claims there are 18 Senior Living Facilities nearby that he wants to feed. "I also want to feed the 1st responders!" Hernandez exclaimed. All he needs are the donations and he will do the rest. "I am sanitizing everything and making togo orders for my loyal customers, but I want to do more." "I know my customers will come back to me when they can, but in the mean time, I want to serve the community and I need generous people to make a donation to help me do this."

Hernandez claims that because of social restrictions and that he has had to close his dining room to sit down customers he no longer has the sales to be able to purchase the necessary food and supplies to be able to do this on his own. This is why he is asking for help from people that want to participate in serving the community, just like he does. "I know there are people out there that are not struggling financially as much as we are in the restaurant business and if they are willing to help me out with a donation, OPH Alpharetta is taking donations to feed 1st responders and people in need.

“I am sanitizing everything and making togo orders for my loyal customers, but I want to do more.”

I am ready to do the work and feed these deserving members of our community.” Erik Hernandez and his father Erick Hernandez Sr have always been willing to do the work. Maple syrup runs through their veins. They claim they are waiting patiently for their loyal clientele to come back in to eat, but they want them to stay safe and healthy, and in the mean time they really just want to keep on flipping those pancakes for the deserving bellies.
